

DIGGERS' CAMP

A MAP FOR WW2 HISTORIC SITES IN QUEENSLAND

ONE

Success Criteria

SUCCESS CRITERIA

01

Functionality

- Users can find the site through the map and view the site details
- Users can find the site through the library and view the site details

02

Enlightenment

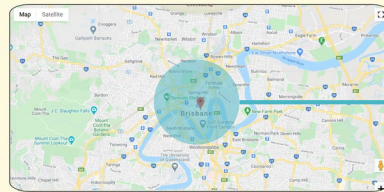

- Determine whether users are interested in Queensland WWII sites through the website

03

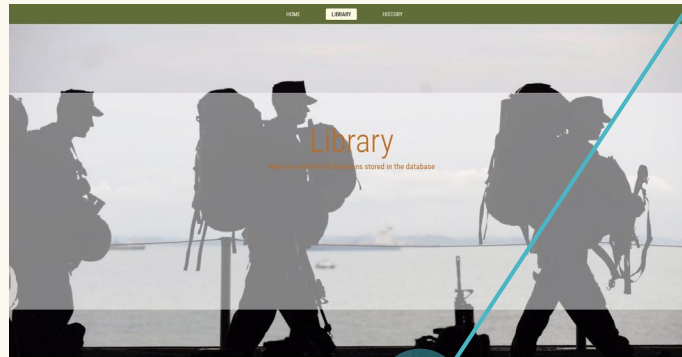

Usability & Experience

- Use survey to evaluate how users' overall feelings after using the website

Interaction Map

Home Page

| specification |
|---------------|
| Name |
| Type |
| Suburb |

| |
|----------------|
| Search content |
| Search content |

Library Page

Macarthur Chambers

About this site

Introduction

MacArthur Chambers is a heritage-listed former office building at 229 Queen Street (corner of Edward Street), Brisbane City, City of Brisbane, Queensland, Australia. It was designed by Francis Richard Hall and built from 1931 to 1934 by George Alexander Stronach. It was also known as the AMP Building. It was added to the Queensland Heritage Register on 21 October 1992. The MacArthur Chambers building and sites adjacent to the building, comprising an entire city block, were redeveloped in the late 1990s, creating the shopping mall MacArthur Central. In 2016, MacArthur Chambers contains the MacArthur Chambers Apartment Hotel, the MacArthur Museum and an Apple Store.

Notes

MacArthur Chambers is a heritage-listed former office building at 229 Queen Street (corner of Edward Street), Brisbane City, City of Brisbane, Queensland, Australia. It was designed by Francis Richard Hall and built from 1931 to 1934 by George Alexander Stronach. It was also known as the AMP Building. It was added to the Queensland Heritage Register on 21 October 1992. The MacArthur Chambers building and sites adjacent to the building, comprising an entire city block, were redeveloped in the late 1990s, creating the shopping mall MacArthur Central. In 2016, MacArthur Chambers contains the MacArthur Chambers Apartment Hotel, the MacArthur Museum and an Apple Store.

Read More Information >

Address

229 Queen Street, Brisbane City, City of Brisbane, Queensland, Australia

Contact

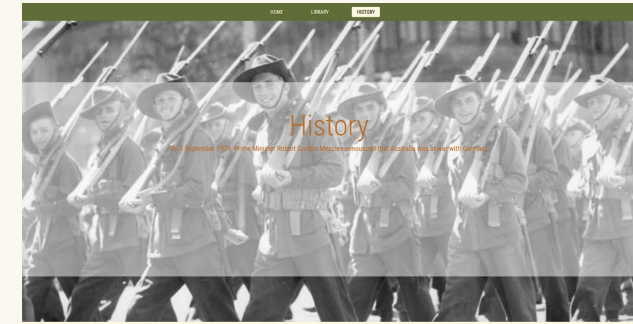

Phone
07 3221 9229
Email
info@macarthurchambers.com.au
Postcode
201 Edward Street, Brisbane City, QLD 4000
On Facebook
Facebook.com/MacArthurChambers

Detail Info Page

Find Detail Page

Find History Page

Back to Home Page

Australia in WW2

Australia in WW2

Australia entered World War II on 3 September 1939, following the government's acceptance of the United Kingdom's declaration of war on Nazi Germany. Australia later entered into a state of war with other members of the Axis powers, including the Kingdom of Italy on 11 June 1940, and the Empire of Japan on 8 December 1941. By the end of the war, almost a million Australians had served in the armed forces, whose military units fought primarily in the European theatre, North African campaign, and the South West Pacific theatre. In addition, Australia came under direct attack for the first time in its post-colonial history. Its casualties from enemy action during the war were 27,373 killed and 23,477 wounded. World War II contributed to major changes in the nation's economy, military and foreign policy. The war accelerated the process of industrialisation, led to the development of a larger peacetime military and began the process with which Australia shifted the focus of its foreign policy from Britain to the United States. The final effects of the war also contributed to the development of a more diverse and cosmopolitan Australian society.

Australia in WW2

Australian Army units were gradually withdrawn from the Mediterranean and Europe following the outbreak of war with Japan. However, Royal Australian Air Force and Royal Australian Navy units and personnel continued to take part in the war against Germany and Italy. From 1942 until early 1944, Australian forces played a key role in the Pacific War, making up the majority of Allied strength throughout much of the fighting in the South West Pacific theatre. While the military was largely relegated to subsidiary fronts from mid-1944, it continued offensive operations against the Japanese until the war ended.

Australia in WW2

World War II contributed to major changes in the nation's economy, military and foreign policy. The war accelerated the process of industrialisation, led to the development of a larger peacetime military and began the process with which Australia shifted the focus of its foreign policy from Britain to the United States. The final effects of the war also contributed to the development of a more diverse and cosmopolitan Australian society.

More info

History Page

TWO

Evidence of Design Process

DESIGN PROCESS

1

Framework

Assign tasks based on the prototype of the project part A

2

Separate Page

Each team member completes the responsible page

3

File summary

Collect all pages and adjust the format

4

Embed Map API

Apply for Google Maps API and embed it on the homepage of the website

5

Final Demo

Upload the demo to the server, and complete the PPT used for pitch

— Iterations

Design and Changes

In the website design process, each team member is responsible for different pages.

After each is completed, review each other and revise.

On 3 September 1939, Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies announced that Australia was at war with Germany.

No. 80 Squadron aircraft at Noemfoor in November 1944

WWII in Australia

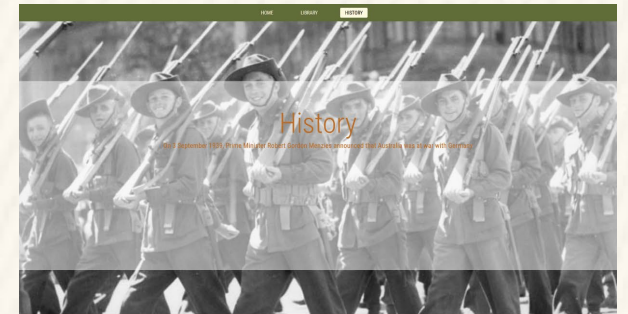

Australia entered World War II on 3 September 1939, following the government's acceptance of the United Kingdom's declaration of war on Nazi Germany. Australia later entered into a state of war with other members of the Axis powers, including the Kingdom of Italy on 11 June 1940, and the Empire of Japan on 9 December 1941. By the end of the war, almost a million Australians had served in the armed forces, whose military units fought primarily in the European theatre, North African campaign, and the South West Pacific theatre. In addition, Australia came under direct attack for the first time in its post-colonial history. Its casualties from enemy action during the war were 27,071 killed and 21,477 wounded.

Australian Army units were gradually withdrawn from the Mediterranean and Europe following the outbreak of war with Japan. However, Royal Australian Air Force and Royal Australian Navy units and personnel continued to take part in the war against Germany and Italy. From 1942 until early 1944, Australian forces played a key role in the Pacific War, making up the majority of Allied strength throughout much of the fighting in the South West Pacific theatre. While the military was largely relegated to subsidiary fronts from mid-1944, it continued offensive operations against the Japanese until the war ended.

World War II contributed to major changes in the nation's economy, military and foreign policy. The war accelerated the process of industrialisation, led to the development of a larger peacetime military and began the process with which Australia shifted the focus of its foreign policy from Britain to the United States. The final effects of the war also contributed to the development of a more diverse and cosmopolitan Australian society.

Iteration 1

History

1939-1945: Australia's Role in World War II

Australia in WW2

Australia in WW2

Australia entered World War II on 3 September 1939, following the government's acceptance of the United Kingdom's declaration of war on Nazi Germany. Australia later entered into a state of war with other members of the Axis powers, including the Kingdom of Italy on 11 June 1940, and the Empire of Japan on 9 December 1941. By the end of the war, almost a million Australians had served in the armed forces, whose military units fought primarily in the European theatre, North African campaign, and the South West Pacific theatre. In addition, Australia came under direct attack for the first time in its post-colonial history. Its casualties from enemy action during the war were 27,071 killed and 21,477 wounded. World War II contributed to major changes in the nation's economy, military and foreign policy. The war accelerated the process of industrialisation, led to the development of a larger peacetime military and began the process with which Australia shifted the focus of its foreign policy from Britain to the United States. The final effects of the war also contributed to the development of a more diverse and cosmopolitan Australian society.

Australia in WW2

Australian Army units were gradually withdrawn from the Mediterranean and Europe following the outbreak of war with Japan. However, Royal Australian Air Force and Royal Australian Navy units and personnel continued to take part in the war against Germany and Italy. From 1942 until early 1944, Australian forces played a key role in the Pacific War, making up the majority of Allied strength throughout much of the fighting in the South West Pacific theatre. While the military was largely relegated to subsidiary fronts from mid-1944, it continued offensive operations against the Japanese until the war ended.

No. 80 Squadron aircraft at Noemfoor in November 1944

More info

Iteration 2

The background features a series of faint, light gray concentric circles centered on the left side of the frame. A larger, solid white circle is positioned in the center-right, containing the text. Two smaller, semi-transparent circles with concentric line patterns are located on the left and right sides of the central white circle, partially overlapping it. Two solid black dots are placed on the left and right edges of the central white circle, aligned with the centers of the semi-transparent circles.

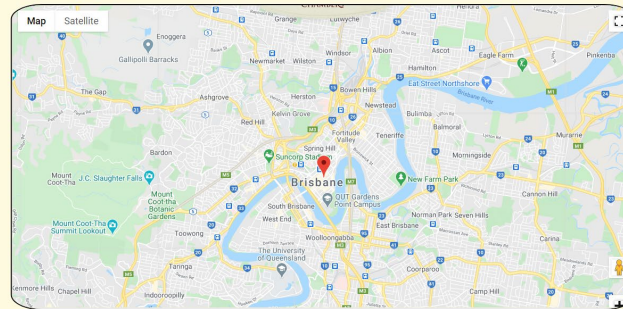

THREE

Demo & Feedback

— DEMO

A map
for WW2
historic sites
in Queensland

SHOW

Australia in WW2

Australia in WW2
Australia entered World War II on 3 September 1939, following the government's acceptance of the United Kingdom's declaration of war on Nazi Germany. Australia later entered into a state of war with other members of the Axis powers, including the Kingdom of Italy on 11 June 1940, and the Empire of Japan on 8 December 1941. By the end of the war, almost a million Australians had served in the armed forces, often suffering with little priority in the European theatre, North African campaigns, and the South West Pacific theatre. In addition, Australia came under direct attack for the first time in its post-colonial history. Its casualties from enemy action during the war were 27,073 killed and 45,477 wounded. World War II accelerated to major changes in the nation's economy, military and foreign policy. The war accelerated the process of industrialisation, led to the development of a larger postwar culture and began the process with which Australia aligned its form of its foreign policy from Britain to the United States. The final effects of the war also contributed to the development of a more diverse and cosmopolitan Australian society.

Australia in WW2
Australian Army units were gradually withdrawn from the Mediterranean and Europe following the outbreak of war with Japan. However, Royal Australian Air Force and Royal Australian Navy units and personnel continued to take part in the war against Germany and Italy. From 1942 until early 1944, Australian forces played a key role in the Pacific War, making up the majority of Allied strength throughout much of the fighting in the South West Pacific theatre. While the military was largely redeployed to subsidiary fronts from mid-1944, it continued offensive operations against the Japanese until the war ended.

Australia in WW2
World War II accelerated to major changes in the nation's economy, military and foreign policy. The war accelerated the process of industrialisation, led to the development of a larger postwar culture and began the process with which Australia aligned its form of its foreign policy from Britain to the United States. The final effects of the war also contributed to the development of a more diverse and cosmopolitan Australian society.

More info

Feedback Question

Question 1

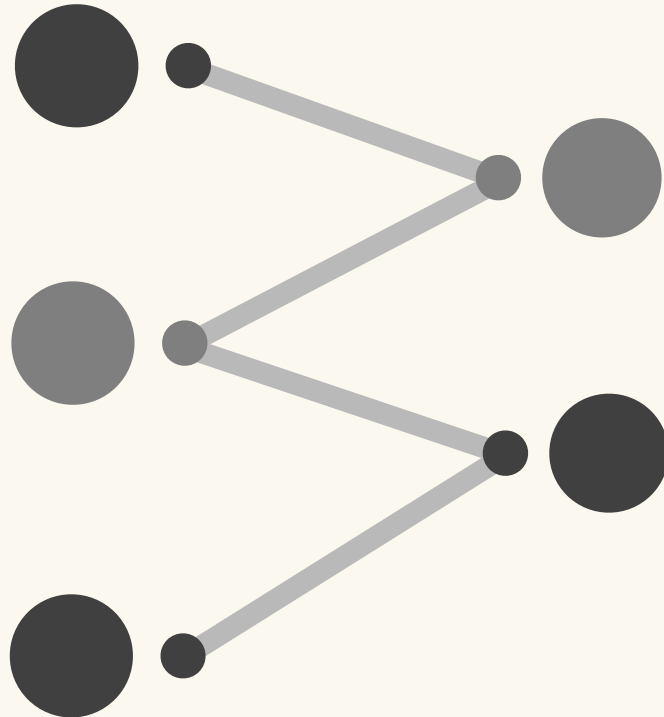

What do you think of the website's aesthetic design

Question 2

What do you think of the website's navigation design

Question 3

What do you think of the website's function design

Question 4

What features do you think the website can add

Question 5

What else do you think can be added to the map

THANKS!

DECO 7180

DIGGERS CAMP TEAM